Influenza Death in Santa Barbara County

A female resident of Santa Barbara County in her 20's died due to complications related to influenza during the week ending January 11, 2014. This patient did not receive influenza vaccine this season. This is the first influenza death reported in the County this season. It is a highly contagious respiratory illness caused by influenza viruses. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends that everyone 6 months of age and older should be immunized.

Influenza viruses are spread when a person who has influenza coughs, sneezes or touches a surface handled by others. Unlike many other viral respiratory infections, such as the common cold, the flu can cause severe illness and life-threatening complications in many people. Each year, more than 200,000 people are hospitalized, which includes 20,000 children under the age of 5. Getting a flu vaccine is easy, and it is the single best way to protect yourself and your loved ones from flu.

To obtain flu vaccine check with your health care provider. Even if you don’t have a regular health care provider, you can get a flu vaccine from one of these other locations:
